

IDeACOM and Vodavi Reach Out to the Epilepsy Association of Central Florida With Telephony Equipment Donation

Orlando-based Foundation Receives New Phone System In Support of National Epilepsy Awareness Month

Phoenix, AZ - Vodavi Technology, Inc. (NASDAQ:VTEK), a provider of traditional and next generation business telecommunications solutions, and IDeACOM Solutions Group today announced the Epilepsy Association of Central Florida is the recipient of a new telephone system for its headquarters in Orlando.

The Epilepsy Association of Central Florida, a not-for-profit organization dedicated to serving the needs of those affected by epilepsy in over 20 Central Florida counties, was selected because of its community outreach to the surrounding communities and its pressing need for more efficient communications to support its ongoing success. Vodavi, which donated the new digital telephone system with digital voice mail and 30-button telephone sets, established this community outreach program as a way to help 501c3 charitable organizations have access to the latest communication technologies. Vodavi dealers such as Ideacom Solutions Group that are located throughout the U.S. who achieve Vodavi's elite President's Club status during a given year are eligible to nominate a local area charity to receive this one-time equipment donation. IDeACOM Solutions Group donated installation and training services.

"The growth our association has achieved is a direct result of the incredibly positive service we offer our fellow citizens affected by this disorder," said Chuck Connor, Director of The Epilepsy Association of Central Florida. "The association started out at the University of Gainesville campus. We recently opened up our headquarters location and were in need of a new phone solution. The timing of this donation could not have been better. With the new system we are able to keep our operational costs in line as well as improve our communications so we can spend more time focusing on our mission of helping families affected by epilepsy."

"Often nonprofit organizations are not able to allot budget dollars for capital equipment purchases," states Tammy Elmore, General Manager of IDeACOM Solutions Group. "We are proud to be able to offer this assistance to The Epilepsy Association of Central Florida, and we especially thank Vodavi who started this charitable program so worthwhile organizations can now have the opportunity to use state-of-the-art equipment while continuing their valuable community service work.”

About The Epilepsy Association of Central Florida

Established in 1962, The Epilepsy Association of Central Florida (EACF) is a not-for-profit community based organization dedicated to serving the needs of those affected by epilepsy. EACF is a local direct service agency where 100% of the gifts we receive stay to serve the citizens of Central Florida. We are governed by a local elected volunteer Board of Directors that represent a cross section of professionals, civic leaders, and consumers that are responsible for directing the activities of our agency. EACF is further strengthened by a volunteer Professional Advisory Board made up of local area medical professionals and a dedicated staff of men and women. For more information, visit www.epilepsy-cf.org.

About IDeACOM Solutions Group

Headquartered in Orlando, FL, IDeACOM Solutions Group sells and services reliable and cost effective communications systems in addition to providing expert design services for network cabling and local, long distance and Internet access. The Company has served the central Florida region for over 40 years. IDeACOM Solutions Group is a founding member of IDeACOM, LLC, a 70-member consortium consisting of top dealers in the country specializing in advanced communications solutions for businesses. For more information on IDeACOM Solutions Group, visit www.askideacom.com.